

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, March 31. 1708.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 6.

Paris, March 30.

THE Express that arriv'd at Court from Dunkirk on the 25th of last Month brought Letters from the pretended Prince of Wales, and from Count Forbin. Among these Letters was a Pacquet for the Q. Dowager of England, Widow of the late King James, and M. de Pontchartrain was immediately sent to carry it to St. Germain. That Queen receiv'd it with so great Joy, that these about her immediately believ'd, that it brought her very good News; upon which it was soon rumour'd that the intended Descent had been successfully made in the Roads of Leith: But this Report was in a short time contradic'ted, it being known for certain, that the pretended Prince of Wales wrot nothing to his Mother, only that he had been a little Sea-sick, but was entirely well again, and that according to the calculation of his Pilots he wou'd to land in Scotland the next day, the Wind being very favourable. Count Forbin wrot likewise to the King, that from the time he sail'd out of Newport Roads, he had heard no thing of the Enemy's Fleet, and that he made no question but that he should be able to land his Forces, even though he were pursu'd by Admiral Byng. The Captain of the Frigate that brought this News to Dunkirk, reports nevertheless, that 6 Hours after he left Count Forbin's Fleet, he discover'd that of the Enemy, standing after them with a fair Wind. Since this we have had no News of our Fleet, which makes it believ'd at Court, that the pretended Prince of Wales is landed in Scotland; that the English Fleet did not pursue ours very far, but lags behind on purpose to hinder any Advice-Boat from bringing the News of this Descent to our Coasts. Our last Advices from Madrid say, that the Duke of Orleans has dispatch'd two of his Aides de-Camp, one to the Frontier of Catalonia, and the other to Badajoz in Eſtramadura, with Orders to form at Caspe on the 20th of this Month the Army which himself is to command, and at Valencia d' Alcantara that which is design'd to act against Portugal: That the Troops were already in full March towards those two Places of general Rendezvous: That the Duke of Orleans was to leave Madrid on the 20th of this Month in Order to take the Field; and that King Philip was likewise to set forward from thence on the 1st of April, but that it was not known for certain whether his Majesty design'd to go to the Army in Catalonia, or to that in Eſtramadura.

Hague, April 3. Yesterday an Express arriv'd from Brussels, sent by M. d' Auverquerque: It does not indeed confirm the Report we had of the total Defeat of the French Fleet that went from Dunkirk; but it brings us nevertheless the welcome News, that Admiral Byng had given Chace to that Fleet, and scatter'd it, insomuch that the Enemy's Design of making a Descent in Scotland is come to nothing: And M. d' Auverquerque adds, that he intended the 1st Instant to cause the Canon at Brussels and in all the other Places of Brabant to be fir'd, by way of rejoicing for this happy Success. His Excellency intended to come hither in a short time, but had not then fix'd the Day of his Departure from Brussels. Prince Eugene is likewise expected here by the End of this Week, as we hear by an Express that came hither on Sunday last in 5 Days from the Court of Vienna.

From the Amsterdam Courant, dated April 7.

Ghent, April 4. Yesterday in the Evening three Salvoes were made of the Canon of our Castle and Ramparts for the dissipating and worſting of the French Fleet on the Coast of Scotland. This Afternoon arriv'd here the Deputies of their High Mightinesses, with M. Cadogan, and M. Patchal. According to the Advices from Dunkirk, they were there in a great Conſternation on account of the ill News they had receiv'd of the French Fleet, seeing according to the last Letters from thence, not one of the Ships that had been on the Coast of Scotland were come back.

Brussels, April 4. The Canon of this Town, as well as of all the Places of Brabant and Flanders have been fir'd for the miscarriage of the Enemy's Design upon Scotland, and for the Defeat of their Fleet. Yesterday they receiv'd at Mons the News of Admiral Byng's meeting with French, but all endeavours were us'd to conceal what had happen'd between them. The Deputies of the States-General of the United Netherlands are expected here from Ghent. General Dopff came hither Yesterday in the Evening. We do not yet know the Day when M. d' Auverquerque will be going hence for the Hague.

Hague April 5. Prince Eugene of Savoy, who was at Hal in Saxony on the 31st of last Month, and went from thence on the first Instant for Hanover, is expected here on Saturday in the Evening, or on Sunday next at farthest. We hear that their High Mightinesses have written to the Queen of Great Britain, to congratulate her Majesty on the good Fortune her Fleet has had in dissipating that of the French, and upon the Miscarriage of the Enemy's Design of landing in Scotland.

Amsterdam, April 6. Letters from Cadiz of the 11th of March say, that the Day before an Advice-Ship arriv'd there from the Havas, and brought News, that M. de Caisle came thither the 3d of January with 24 Men of War, and immediately sent a Ship to Vera Cruz, with Orders for the Fleet to get ready with all Expedition, and come away from thence, which according to the Report of Passengers, was impossible to be done yet awhile, the Silver being carry'd up into the Country; insomuch that 'tis believ'd they cannot be coming thence this Year. By Letters from Seville of the 13th of March, they had Advice that a Ship from the Terra firma was arriv'd at St. Lucar, but what News it had brought from the Gallions was not then known. The Ship St. Peter is arriv'd here in 28 Days from the River of Bourdeaux, and the Master reports, that on the 4th of this Month he met about 4 Leagues to the Eastward

Eastward of Camperduyn, two French Men of War, of 26 or 30 Guns, steering their Course Southward, and full of Soldiers and Officers; and that the Day before he met first five, and then 5 other Men of War, but the Weather being very Rainy, he could not discover what they were.
